"Senator Root very naturally replied,"

Mr. Low said yesterday, "that it would be embarrassing for him to assume that the convention would elect him as its president, and without assuming that he did not perceive that he could do very much." Low got twenty-two other Republican delegates to sign with him a letter asking all the Republican delegates, if they felt so disposed, to let Mr. Root know that they intended to vote for him. Mr. Low asked that the replies be directed personally to Mr. Root, but that the envelopes be addressed to Mr. Low, so that the vote could be tabulated.

"I have received these letters, signed by 101 delegates elect, including three who have writt n letters somewhat different in form, but substantially of the same tenor. There is no suggestion that any delegates not heard from are unfriendly to the election of Senator Root. Only they have not responded to the letter se to them.
